

Cross-ownership of media outlets will only further degrade the current lamentable state of broadcast and print news. Where there is a lack of competition between the types of media, there exists a complacency - which in turn breeds a mind-numbing mediocrity. Cross-ownership is, in my opinion, not merely a bad idea - it is Orwellian in intent, and would be draconian in practice.